ABSTRACT EP 607823 A1

A system to generate large (e.g. $1 million) jackpots for live card games such as blackjack is disclosed. Multiple live card tables (2) are placed in one or more gaming establishments. A coin acceptor (12) is assigned to each player position (8) on the tables and includes a sensor (14) for determining the presence of a coin (76) to generate a signal indicating that a jackpot side bet has been placed and to correspondingly increase the available jackpot that is being accumulated from the side bets on all tables. The coin acceptors are mounted directly to the playing tables. The acceptors have a low profile above the table top and include sloping surfaces (72) to facilitate the insertion and withdrawal of coins from them. Each coin acceptor communicates with a central computer (24) or processor. The computer keeps track of jackpot accumulations, deducts winnings therefrom, controls strategically positioned displays (28) to inform players and dealers of the size of the available jackpot or jackpots, and the table includes controls adjacent the dealer position to prevent late betting and pay winning players their jackpots. English Abstract

A gaming machine in which the form of pay out is selectable by the operator and/or user to provide a pay out with coins or by way of a ticket. The gaming machine incorporates both a hopper for coin operated play as well as a printer for cashless play. In accordance with one aspect of the machine, the system can automatically detect when one of the pay out systems is disabled or otherwise unavailable and automatically continue operation with the other pay out method to allow the machine to function in a limited state. The system thus helps the transition for players from coin operated machines to cashless gaming machines, and accommodates users with different cash out preferences. The gaming machine also accepts tickets, allowing users to easily move their credits from one gaming machine to another.

Abstract (Basic): US 5169108 A

The food and/or beverage holder is for mounting on a card table and includes a food or beverage platform or a beverage container receptacle mounted radially to a base sized to separate the holder far enough from a hook extension, for sanitary reasons. The base is mounted radially from its other end to a table receptacle for providing vertical stability.

From the base or table leg receptacle, a hook extends axially upwardly for removable attachment to one or more of the table leg lateral projections. The beverage holder may be removably constructed for separating a major horizontal member from the remainder of the apparatus, to enhance portability.

ADVANTAGE - Reduced risk of beverage spillage e.g. during card games.

ABSTRACT

PROBLEM TO BE SOLVED: To use a hook member irrelevant to the state of the table body, being used or stored state by providing a hook member for hanging a luggage in a position adjacent to a through hole for a cup holder in the rear face of the table body.

SOLUTION: A table body 25 is provided with a through hole 41 for a cup holder and a hook member 43 for hanging a luggage is provided in the rear face of the table body 25 in a position adjacent to the through hole 41 for the cup holder. The hook member 43 is provided with a pivot part 45 and a hook 46 rotationally pivoted to the pivot part 45. A holder member 51 for receiving the bottom of a cup, etc., to be inserted in the through hole 41 is provided under the through hole 41 for the cup holder. The hook 46 of the hook member 43 for hanging the luggage is so formed as to be projected from the through hole 41 for the cup holder, however, if the hook 46 of the hook member 43 is in a usable state, it may not be projected.

ABSTRACT EP 733510 A2

A cup holder assembly formed as part of a vehicle arm rest. The cup holder includes a slidable drawer mounted to a frame for movement between an extended position and a retracted position. A retaining arm is supported by the drawer and biased to pivot about a vertical axis between a use position and a stored position. The retaining arm has a retaining ring on one end which defines a container receiving aperture. The ring also includes a downwardly extending offset which is adapted to receive the handle of a container. The drawer additionally has an indentation defined in a lateral side edge and the indentation is located so as to correspond with and receive the offset when the retaining arm is in its stored position.
